Leadership Message

In October 2024, a disturbing pattern of Islamophobic incidents continued across India, marked by hate speech, communal clashes, and targeted violence against Muslim communities. High-profile figures, including BJP leaders and right-wing organizations, openly advocated for economic boycotts and issued threats to Muslims, further intensifying tensions.

Notable incidents include BJP leader Ravi Negi's demand for Muslim shopkeepers in Delhi to reveal their "real names" or face consequences, and the tragic killing of a Muslim woman and her daughter in Latur, Maharashtra, which the family believes was a hate crime. Numerous gatherings, such as rallies and public events led by Hindutva groups, called for boycotts and violence, as seen in Uttarakhand, where a BJP leader encouraged an economic boycott and violence against Muslims. This was echoed in several areas where Hindutva organizations held rallies that further fueled divisive rhetoric.

In multiple states, violence erupted over seemingly minor issues, often resulting in physical attacks on Muslim individuals, arson, and vandalism of Muslim-owned properties. For example, in Tripura's Kadamtala, a clash over a Durga Puja subscription resulted in a Muslim man's death and significant property damage. A mosque was set on fire in North Tripura following communal clashes, showcasing an alarming disregard for religious sites.

Throughout the month, videos circulated on social media revealing incidents of targeted violence against Muslims, including an elderly Muslim beggar beaten in Amethi, Uttar Pradesh, and young Muslim men assaulted during Navratri events. This hostile environment was amplified by inflammatory remarks from public figures like BJP MLA Nand Kishore Gurjar, who suggested police should have taken lethal action against Muslim protesters.

The pervasive nature of these incidents highlights a systemic issue where communal tensions are not only being tolerated but, at times, encouraged by the influential figures, leading to an environment filled with fear and insecurity for Muslim communities in India.
